What we learn online

If you want your students to practise some useful vocabulary before starting the lesson, there is an extra vocabulary task at the end of the teacher's version of the worksheet. You can either read it out loud, making sure that students pay attention to the phrases in bold, or you can print the task out, cut it up and distribute it among students.

1. Think of some challenges in trying to find the information in the boxes online. Then, say how someone can get the information without using the internet.

a recipe for tasty chocolate cake

recommendations for a funny comedy

the history of dogs

- 2. Complete each sentence with one idea.
 - 50 years ago, if someone had a question like 'How do birds fly?', they...
 - Looking for information online can be challenging because...
 - Online learning has advantages such as:...
- 3. Watch a video [https://youtu.be/TcOEt6TdoYQ] and add more information to each statement in ex. 2.

Possible answers:

- 50 years ago, if someone had a question like 'How do birds fly?', they asked a friend, asked their parents, looked in a book, asked their teacher, went to a library.[00:22]
- Looking for information online can be challenging because there is a lot of it, so it's difficult to find what we need. [01:14]
- Online learning has advantages such as: parents can download materials or find virtual classes for their kids, people can learn professional skills and hobbies. [01:43]

4. Discuss the questions.

- The speaker in the video says: 'The World Wide Web is more like the Wild Wild West'. What do you think he means? Possible answer: Internet users can do what they want and so there is a lot of chaos online.
- The speaker also says: 'The power to decide how and when to learn is now yours.' What are some advantages and disadvantages of having this power?

ESL Brains

What we learn online

- What do you think 'information overload' is? Have you ever experienced it? If so, why do you think it happened? Possible answer: Information overload is a situation in which you have too much information and it is difficult for you to understand it or to find what you need.
- You can give students this example to help them understand what 'information overload' means:

 There is so much information online that I often experience 'information overload' and don't know what is important or which source to use.
 - Do you sometimes prefer books or other sources of information to the internet? Why/Why not?
- 5. Think of at least one advantage of each of the options in the pairs. Then, say which option in each pair you would prefer.

learn about history from a podcast learn about history from a book or have online lessons have lessons in person or read some statistics from an infographic or read about some statistics in an article learn about business from learn about business from a webinar or an experienced colleague ask ChatGPT for advice on writing a CV google some tips on how to write a CV or read a newsletter every week to know what follow sportspeople on social media to or is going on in the world of sport know what is going on in the world of sport

- 6. Read the statements and decide if you 1 agree, 2 partly agree/disagree, 3 disagree. Explain your answers.
 - I generally trust the information I read or hear online.
 - Finding correct information online is easy if you know how to do it.
 - An offline course certificate is worth more than an online course certificate.
 - You can learn anything if you have internet access.
 - People should be able to graduate from universities online.

What we learn online

7. Read about the courses and discuss the questions below.

Dog training

An experienced animal trainer will teach you how to listen and talk to your dog.

Why you need Al today

You'll learn to use AI in everyday tasks to make them easier. The course has been created by three university professors.

Instagram feed design

A professional Instagrammer will teach you how to create original and fun Instagram content.

Find your inner peace

An experienced coach will take you on a journey during which you will discover the peace inside you.

Time management for busy people

A manager with 30 years of experience shares her tricks on using time wisely.

Learn how to learn from online courses

Don't just watch online courses. Learn from them. Two teachers will show you how to remember new information.

Become a horror stories writer

Use your biggest fears and write great stories! A famous author will show you how to start.

Become a master UX designer

The course offers everything you need to start a career as a User Experience Designer. Learn to do research, how to start designing websites and ways to present your work.

- Which pieces of information included in the course descriptions might encourage students to take the courses?
- Which of the courses would you take? Is there anything else about the courses that you would like to know before getting started?
- What's important for you in an online course (e.g. how long it takes to complete it, other participants' opinions, the price)? How do you know if a course is good?
- What makes a course popular? How can a course creator encourage people to take their course?
- What is your experience with educational platforms and online courses?
- If you could create an online course, what would it be about? How would you make it more interesting than other online courses?

ESL Brains

What we learn online

Name:

- A. a piece of information about the place you live in
- B. a website where you can often find incorrect information
- C. a type of information you can usually find on an infographic
- D. an example of useless information
- E. something that is valuable information for someone who is going on holiday
- F. a reason some books contain outdated information
- G. a website where you can usually find up-to-date information
- H. a source of information people often use to know what is going on in the world
- I. a reason someone might need detailed information about a foreign country
- J. something you can do if you need to access information about your savings

Name:

- A. a piece of information about the place you live in
- B. a website where you can often find incorrect information
- C. a type of information you can usually find on an infographic
- D. an example of useless information
- E. something that is valuable information for someone who is going on holiday
- F. a reason some books contain outdated information
- G. a website where you can usually find up-to-date information
- H. a source of information people often use to know what is going on in the world
- I. a reason someone might need detailed information about a foreign country
- J. something you can do if you need to access information about your savings